SLAYER OF BEAUTY PLEADS SELF DEFENSE

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

It may be so but we don't know. We have just finished reading the report that a Mexican chemist has perfected a process to turn lead into silver.

We know some fellows right here in Richmond that are experts at that. Only they don't stop with silver. They'll take most any old thing and turn it into gold .

Then there's the Chicago politician who quit the game and went into the coal business. He insisted that the latter was cleaner.

'Twas ever thus. Vallejo is all upset because San Francisco is getting some of its glory. It seems that one of the largest submarines in the world was launched at Mare Island the other day and all the newsreel pictures of the event advertise it as having happened at Mare Island "in" San Francisco. Taint right, but what can be done about it?

Souvenir hunters score again. The University of California museum of paleotology is advertising for a set of teeth and various other accout-rements beonging to a Pliocene mastodon, taken by some ambitious souvenir hunter. The teeth are needed to complete the exhibit.

Yes, this is a modern world but we find that 2500 years ago, ancient Greece was using quite a few of the medicines which the modern physicians and surgeons use.

Now they are going to have a school for traffic officers. We might suggest for the benefit of some that we have met on the road that a course in courtesy is included. It might also be a good idea to have a line in their copy book reading: "Even though I have got a gun on my hip and a star on my chest I am not the judge, jury and executioner. My duty consists solely of enforcing the law and not acting as a final tribunal in minor infractions."

About the silliest of the silly thing which our alleged dignified lawmakers of Congress have wasted their time and our money on is the censorship of books. Authors will now battle to have their books outlawed so that they can have record sales.

And during the recent hot spell we blamed it upon the weather because we had trouble in filling this column. We can't think of a good reason now unless it is the cool breezes that are flirting with our locks.

HOLMES HELD ON RUM COUNT

M. W. Holmes, of the Regal apartments on 404 Twenty-third street, Richmond, is free on $500 bail awaiting hearing before Police Judge C. A. Odell tomorrow morning on a charge of illegal possession of liquor.

Holmes was arrested by Richmond police yesterday in a raid on his apartment conducted by Chief of Police Dan Cox.

Arresting officers declare that Holmes had in his possession a large quantity of liquor, including several gallons of whiskey, wine, gin and beer.

It was learned yesterday that appointment of a city recreational director to fill the vacancy left by the death of W. L. Seawright, will probably not be made until after the close of the present school year.

In the meantime, George D. Miner, of the Roosevelt Junior high school faculty, is carrying out the program previously mapped out by Seawright.

FITTS SAYS CASE JUST STARTED

LOS ANGELES, March 29.—UP—The investigation of the three-year-old collapse of the $100,000,000 Julian Petroleum corporation has just started, District Attorney Buron Fitts announced tonight.

Early next week the grand jury will return indictments which will completely overshadow the true bills just returned which named 37 men on charges of conspiring to collect usurious interest from the oil company, the prosecutor declared.

The predicted indictments will name persons, high in business, official and civic circles who never before have been mentioned in the various Julian cases, he said. The charges will include conspiracy to violate the state corporate securities act, conspiracy to commit grand theft, embleizzlement of funds and perjury.

Berman Talks

All the charges will be based on the 4,000,000 share overissue of stock which caused Julian to buckle and then fail in May, 1927.

Testimony of Jacob Berman, former Julian executive, convicted mail defrauded and confessed jury briber, will lead to the indictments and will be use in the attempt to get convictions, Fitts said.

It was Berman's recital before the grand jury which caused the 37 indictments to be returned last night.

Many Surrender

Most of the prominent men named then as having conspired to get execessive interest from the company had surrendered and posted bail tonight.

Louis B. Mayer, the motion picture magnate, was one of the defendants who appeared in Superior Judge Walton Wood's court to post bond of $5,000.

Others, charged with the same crime, released on the same amount of bail were H. Gutterman, I. O. Levy, Abe Prell, S. Goodman, Phillip Grossman, F. E. Harris, R. E. Moody, Henry McKay, Alvin Frank, W. I. Hollingsworth, Adolph Ramish, H. W. Chotiner, F. Forbstein, M. Weinstein, E. Bastheim, H. A. Bell, P. L. McMullen, V. R. Kelsey.

Extradition Quashed

Still others reported they would surrender Monday. In this list were H. L. Rouse, Joe Toplitzky, S. S. Max Pruett, Labert Lane, S. Kalish and D. Barnes.

District Attorney Fitts said he had temporarily quashed the orders for the extradition here of Motley Flint, brother of the late Frank Flint, former United States senator, and William Rhodes Hervey.

Man Held On Liquor Charge

H. B. Smith, 740 Seventh street Richmond, was in the city jail last night awaiting appearance in police court on a charge of illegal possession of liquor.

Smith was arrested in a raid on his house last night. Police declare that a quantity of liquor was found in his possession.

Flapper Has Ideas About Washington

DENVER, Colo., March 29—UP—A school girl's conception of George Washington in a twentieth century atmosphere so startled officials of a private school here that she was under suspension tonight for a week.

With other members of her class she was told to write what would happen if the father of his country visited it today.

"I dressed myself as I thought a girl of my age would dress in those demure times," wrote the 13-year-old girl, whose father was a well known short story writer. "I went down to Mt. Vernon and asked Washington to take a walk with me. We started along the road to Alexandria.

"He did not seem to notice the marvelous inventions that were everywhere in view. An airplane passing overhead caused only moderate curiosity to him.

"A swift traveling automobile elicited little more then a passing remark.

"We continued our stroll until we were nearly half way to Alexandria. Coming down the road was a flapper with short skirts and bobbed hair, idly puffing a cigaret.

"And that's where I lost George."

And that's why she won't attend classes next week.

GRAFT PROBE TO REOPEN IN OAKLAND

OAKLAND, March 29.—With the resumption of the investigation of the Oakland paving scandal by the Grand Jury Monday, it was reported that indictments will be issued today against a number of eastbay paving men, who have refused to testify before the jury.

Although he intimated the indictments were probable, District Attorney Earl Warren refused to go into details regarding the action.

Floyd Van Noy, heads the list of those who will be asked to testify Monday, and is expected to lay additional details of the operation of the Central Paving Bureau before the grand jury.

Warren declared that Van Noy's evidence is of the "utmost importance" in corroboration of sensational stories of paving graft related by Ernest Q. Norman, Fred Haase and other witnesses.

Monday's resumption of the grand jury investigation will be the first gathering of the jury since Mar. 21 when an accusation was returned against Commissioner W. H. Parker.

OFFICER IN BATTLE WITH SUSPECT

Frank Ganascia, 51, a laborer living at 18 Standard avenue, was in the city jail this morning facing charges of assault with a deadly weapon.

Ganascia was placed under arrest by Patrolman E. M. Logan of the Richmond police department after Logan had taken a pistol away from Ganascia and had overpowered him, according to police reports.

Logan and Officer J. R. Arbuckle were enroute to the city jail at an early this morning taking two prisoners to the city cells. The two were charged with intoxication.

As Logan was driving along Garrard boulevard he saw Ganascia stand in the middle of the street, waving his hands, police reported.

Believing that the man was in trouble, Logan stopped his machine, got out and went back to where Ganascia was standing.

At the approach of the officer, Ganascia drew a gun from his pocket, Logan reported. Logan immediately grapped with Ganascia, and took his gun away from him.

A fist fight ensued and Ganascia was slightly bruised. He was taken to the Emergency hospjital for treatment and was later removed to the city jail.

He will face Police Judge C. A. Odell tomorrow morning.

AIR FIGHTERS AT SACRAMENTO FOR 'WAR'

ARMY WAITS ZERO HOUR TUESDAY

SACRAMENTO, March 29.—UP—America's air forces were gathered at Mather field here tonight en masse, waiting for the zero hour at 6:00 a. m. on Tuesday, when they will launch into a three weeks' campaign against a mythical attacking force.

The greatest peace assembly of planes in the history of American air forces has arrived during the past two days and tonight 135 airplanes rested in hangars on the field.

Occasion for the event is the Army Air Corps annual field exercises.

"The exercises are unique in that, for the first time in American Army aviation, they will be confined to air problems without regard to detailed operations of ground troops," General James N. Fechet, chief of the Air Corps told the United Press.

"In other words, the air units will function entirely as an independent air force. The first week of the field exercises will be devoted to airdrome discipline reconnaissance, flight, squadron and group training. The second week will be devoted to various tactical tests, while the third week will see the creation of a simulated invasion of California by a coalition of powers which has been at war with the United States for six months—the 'Red' invaders and the 'Blue' American forces.

"It is assumed that a superior 'Red' fleet, concentrated in Pacific ports south of Santa Cruz has driven the 'Blue' fleet into

FILIPINOS IN RIOT AT DANCE

LOS ANGELES, March 29.—UP—A riot broke out in a Filipino dance hall on Main street here tonight, during which Jerry Moore, a policeman, was stabbed and wounded.

Squads of officers were sent to the scene from the central police station and outlying stations. Moore was in the dance hall when he was stabbed. He was taken to an emergency hospital seriously but not fatally wounded. Two Filipinos were held as suspected of having done the stabbing.

Several white youths and some Filipinos started the fight and Moore went in to stop the disturbance.

AIMEE ON LONG TOUR

NEW YORK, March 29.—(U.P.)—Aimee Semple McPherson and 110 loyal California followers of the Four Square Gospel boarded the liner George Washington tonight, starting a pilgrimage to the Holy land, but the golden-haired evangelist did not seem particularly overjoyed at the realization of one of her fond ambitions.

Instead she indicated she would prefer the quiet of a home to the excitement of the excursion.

A husband and a home like other married people have, are what she wants most of all, Aimee admitted, adding with a tired sigh:

"But if I should get a diamond ring, my people would have a fit."

Mrs. McPherson's 19-year old daughter, Roberta, then interrupted to ask: "What about your boy friend in London?"

"Mamma has the cutest boy friend in London," Roberta said. "I love him" myself. He's tall, handsome, and has beautiful black hair."

The Evangelist choked off any further mention of the "boy friend" with a "hush, child, if he sees that in the papers, he will be scared and not see us when we arrive."

The tour of Aimee's pilgrims will by no means be limited to visits to holy places, the return schedule calling for stops at Monte Carlo and Paris. In Egypt, Mrs. McPherson said, she would preach from the top of a pyramid.

Roberta and a school girl companion, Esther Armstrong, of Los Angeles, will continue on around the world "to study missions."

'SHOWDOWN' IN PRISON RIOT MONDAY

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 29.—UP—Prison officials tonight were preparing to meet what they believe will be the crisis of mutinies and riots at the Missouri state penitentiary.

Officials announced they would reopen the eight factories at the prison Monday.

It was in the factories where the mutinies began this week, leading to the riot in the dining hall Thursday noon when more than 75 prisoners were clubbed into submission after a sharp fight with guards. All factories have been closed since then, with the exception of one working only a few inmates.

Guardsmen Watch

Re-enforced guards and a company of the National Guard will watch the prisoners return to work.

"It will be a severe test," Warden Leslie Rudolph said. "We will know whether the backbone of the mutiny has been broken. We are preparing for the worst. I wouldn't predict what might happen.

"Since we cannot keep the men locked in their cells indefinitely we have to have a showdown. And Monday is the day."

Orders Given

Guardsmen and guards, heavily armed, will be scattered about ready for action if the least trouble develops, Rudolph said.

"We have warned the prisoners," Rudolph said, "that this is a penitentiary from now on and not a Sunday school. If the least trouble starts we will give them 'hell'. Those are my orders."

The veteran penal head, who during his 20 years of service has risen from a guard to warden, has ordered iron clad rules to be enforced. Many liberties have been denied the men who participated

WILD RIDE ENDS IN DEATH

PORTLAND, Ore., March 29.—UP—Although he claimed that the shooting was an accident, Clarence L. King,, 27 confessed to Captain of Detectives Harvey A. Thatcher today, that he killed his common-law wife, Mary McCoy, near Eureka, on the night of Feb. 20.

King's arrest came within 24 hours after the body, found near the Redwood highway between Crescent City and Eureka, had been identified through fingerprints.

King, since married to Eunice Pardee, a Corvallis, Ore., girl, whom he had known two years, told police he would return to Eureka and face the charges which were filed against him yesterday under the name of Joe McCoy, pleading that the act was committed in self defense.

Girl Armed

Miss McCoy, whom he had lived with for about a year, was armed, Kin said, and threatened to kill him if he left her. The first argument occured here as the couple were enroute to California. She showed him the gun, he said, and told him she would kill him if he did not drive to California with her.

King's arrest was brought about when he wrote to the Valley Trust company bank at St. Joseph, Mo., asking that Mary McCoy's account be transferred to Portland. The bank discovered that the signature to the letter was a forgery and after the body of the murdered woman was identified as that of Mary McCoy, notified Portland police of the writer's Portland address.

On On the way they quarreled continuously, he said, and on the Redwood highway, between Cres-

16 TRAPPED IN COAL MINE

KNOXVXILLE, Tenn., March 29.—UP—Hope for the rescue alive of 16 miners entombed in the Pioneer coal company mines at Kettle Island Ky., 85 miles north of Knoxville was virtually abandoned late tonight after two rescue workers were overcome by gas and had to be pulled out. The entombed miners were more than a mile under ground.

Mine rescue crews from Jellico, Tenn., Norton, Va., Harlan and Lexington, Ky., were attempting to rescue the men.

A part of the mine is said to ahve caved in when the mine gas exploded, cutting off escape of the miners.

The mine is back in the mountains and meager reports have been received from there.

According to Hackler, $35 or $45, a razor and a knife were also taken.

Williams will appear in court here Monday morning for hearing on charges of robbing a Concord clothing store. It is believed he will plead guilty.

PARADOX

She could tell much of the sea
But never its wonder
Pounding upon her heart
In deep-voiced thunder.

She could paint scapes of the sea
But never its spray
Throwing flowers for the wind
To carry away!

Sound and sight—the sea
Is too vast a thing.
She sat on a winter shore,

WOMEN'S NEW DRIVE FOR PEACE

TO COMMEMORATE "the sacrifices and services of American women in the World War," President Hoover is accepting to-day, in Washington, a model Red Cross chapter house, with many columns especially dedicated to and by women whose sons were slain.

There is another dedication by which an increasing number of American women are commemorating the war and its sacrifices—a dedication to a new drive for peace. It is women, says Carrie Chapman Catt, who will see to it that the next disarmament conference succeeds, even if the Naval Conference now meeting in London fails the hopes first held out for it. And Mrs. Catt is Chairman of the National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War, which represents eleven notable women's organizations and one-fifth of all the women in the country.

"Women's organizations are of one mind," declares Mrs. Catt. "We shall not be satisfied with anything less than a positive reduction of armaments. No compromise and no new proposal will be acceptable.

"Suppose the conference doesn't give us reduction, what can we do? Another conference will be certain to come. Our first aim is so unite the women of the nation as they never have been united before to stand behind the next conference and give the delegates the assurance that their constituencies at home are not going to play with this question any longer."

THAT women's new drive for peace will reach its objective may be doubted by the cynic, but can anybody doubt that more women are more peace-conscious to-day than ever before?

We think there are two reasons. Women, first, are more free to express themselves. Secondly, they are more intelligent, they think as well as feel about war. As the creators of flesh, they always have revolted emotionally against war's waste and torture of flesh. But now they are discovering, intellectually, war's damage to the human spirit. If you doubt it, read thoughtfully and sympathetically, the war books written by women.

Two of these novels seem to us among the most notable of the current season. Of one of the two—Mary Lee's "It's a Great War"—we have spoken to you with profound and honest admiration. The other is "Three Against Fate," and its author is that keenly intelligent Labor Member of Parliament, Mary Agnes Hamilton, who recently paid a flying visit to New York.

The unusual and interesting feature of Mrs. Hamilton's novel is that it ignores all the more obvious tragedies in which war involves women, like death or mutilation or invalidism of lover or husband. In "Three Against Fate" a woman's case against war is that, sparing the body of the man she loves, war maims and darkens and almost destroys his spirit and the spirit of their hitherto happy relationship.

NOW is the super-man fantastic. Most Americans endured the psychic strain of the World War for a comparatively short period, but every woman knows of engagements, if not marriages, which were broken because the men who came back were not the men who went away. They had seen, the sensitive ones, what they could not say; the "girls they left behind" could not understand them, and the men were helpless to create understanding. Romance, during the period of reconstruction, was something which could not always be reconstructed.

These sharpest and subtlest heart wounds dealt by war to women are explored in firm yet sympathetic fashion by Mrs. Hamilton in her story of British Jean and of Harold, Jean's soldier husband. If their marriage, before the war, had not been so perfect, its poisoning would not seem so tragic. But these two were husband and wife who, after four years, could say, "It's better than ever, isn't it? It's the real Story without an End."

Then Harold goes to the trenches. And the luckless pair spend the next four years in learning, as Jean comes to realize, that "the war is not an outside thing—it's like one of those chemicals that you drop in and then everything, everything is changed."

THE point is that, like all supremely successful married lovers, Jean and Harold have been perfect companions. After he goes to the front the companionship is ended, not so much by the physical separation as because, when he returns, he can no longer talk to his wife, tell her of his life and thoughts. His world is so agonizing—the more, because of his essential fineness, tenderness and imaginative perceptions—that he cannot and will not drag Jean into it. Between them there is what she calls "this stony wall."

So they sweep on, to outer as well as inner tragedy. "Always, she had loved him, foolish and feeble as her love had been; had he not always loved her? . . . Of course he cared . . . because they had four years of happy companionship behind them; had, for four years, known each other in the fullest sense that word could carry. Dreadful, dreadful, that even that knowledge had not saved them from the shot that killed his dearest friend, or from the alienation of their minds, that there was to be no time, now, to mend. If only he were not going back! But he was. The war was there. One might think, talk, feel. It swept all that aside; left no room for that."

When every intelligent woman realizes, like Jean, that, even if modern war spares the man she loves, its inconceivable stresses and cruelties can wreck the finest thing in her life—her love itself—how can she fail to join women's new drive for peace, or halt until it obtains its objective?

Blanket Washing Hints

Soak blankets for an hour in lukewarm water in which white soap flakes and borax have been dissolved.

Some housewives add glycerine to the water to make it soft and prevent the blankets becoming hard. Use three teaspoonsful of glycerine to a quart of water.

If the water is at all hard the rinsing waters should be soapy to make the blankets light and fluffy.

A DISH A DAY

By Nancy Dorris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

The successful fast day dish makes a studied appeal to the eye as well as the taste. Foods attractively combined present an appearance designed to create gustatory interest and, sooner than not, satisfaction.

A colorful Lenten luncheon or dinner main dish is suggested by the Italian combination—green peas and rice. The modern version looks as good as it tastes and, yet is quite within the Lenten law. Delightly poached eggs dotted with butter repose in cavities of saffron - colored rice on a large serving plate bordered with fresh green peas.

NANCY DORRIS

With celery, apple and walnuts, a simple caramel custard, cookies and tea or coffee, the rice, eggs and peas comprise a luncheon menu of parts.

RICE, PEAS AND EGGS

One tablespoon butter
One cup rice, uncooked
Two cups consomme (canned)
A pinch of saffron (optional)
Two pounds fresh peas, uncooked
Salt, pepper
One-half teaspoon sugar
Five or more eggs
Dots of butter
Sprinkle of paprika
Serving: five

The rice and the peas may be cooked in the morning and reheated at serving time. Or canned peas may be used. The reddened rice is achieved by adding a pinch of saffron (obtainable at drug stores or Spanish or Italian groceries) to the grains as they cook. All may not care for the red tint; the dish is tasty and pleasing without it.

Wash the rice—it may be brown or white—and dry between the folds of a towel or absorbent paper. Put the butter in a sauce pan and when hot, but not smoking, add the dry rice; stir frequently to prevent its sticking. When the rice becomes an ivory tone, add the consomme—or plain water. Let boil up, add the pinch of saffron or not, cover and simmer without uncovering or disturbing fifteen to twenty minutes. Uncover and the consomme will have disappeared and holes appear on the surface of the rice. Let stand covered for a few minutes to steam and then serve, or set aside to reheat later.

At serving time the rice should be piping hot (reheating in a double boiler is the safest for a busy cook), the green peas hot and seasoned with salt, pepper and sugar to bring out their true flavor. Poach one egg for each person, or two if the demand warrants them, and drain.

Pile the reddened rice upon the heated serving plate and make cavities to receive the poached eggs. Dot the eggs with butter and sprinkle with paprika. Border with the drained, well-seasoned peas and serve at once.

The World's Window

By Pierre Van Paassen

PARIS, March.

Loyal Czarists

The old banner of Russian autocracy, the standard of the Romanoff Czars with its two-headed eagle, was whipped out and waved by the side of the Tricolor of the French Revolution the other day in Paris. Ten thousand strong voices intoned the "God Save the Czar" at the sight of it. Many men started to weep. This occurred at a meeting of Russian monarchists who had gathered to protest against the disappearance of the White Russian leader, Gen. Koutiepoff, who is thought to have been abducted by the Cheka. A thousand policemen guarded the approaches to the hall where the meeting took place, including armored tanks, tear-gas detachments, Republican Guard, dragoons and firemen, but nothing happened. The Communists of Paris, who were said to be bent upon breaking up the meeting, did not put in an appearance. At a given moment in the course of the meeting every man rose solemnly and with uplifted hand swore allegiance to the Czar. It was all very touching. It was not very difficult to imagine the feelings of most of those present. To them the old regime in Russia meant position and wealth and comfort, and the new order of things exile and penurious existence. That they should wish to return home, to all the things they loved and cherished, is understandable. But that they still go on hoping for a restoration of Czarism is just dreams and dust and ashes. Whatever may come out of that terrific travail in Muscovy, this much is certain: the King business, old style, is done forever.

Elephantasy

A curious court trial is in progress in Paris. The owner of a young elephant is suing a railway company, because the elephant has lost all taste for music following a train accident. Before the accident Mary, the elephant, was a dexterous tambourine player. She was also a marvel on the organ (of Barbary, of course) and played the trombone. Since the collision in which she was so severely shaken up, Mary wants to have nothing more to do with music. [illegible] in a sort of stupor. [illegible]nd tango that she danced formerly with so much gusto have lost all attraction. Her owner asked damages. The matter was threshed out in court and the discourse of the lawyer who appeared for Mary's owner was such an eloquent and interesting digression upon elephants in general that the five Judges and the scribes beneath them sat for three hours with mouths agape like little boys during story-hour at school. The learned advocate began by saying that the elephant is a sympathetic, just and generous beast in the full sense of the word. "That animal of colossal proportions and boundless strength never makes a malicious use of his power except when he has been maltreated," exclaimed the lawyer in his peroration, and he then went on to illustrate his thesis with a recital of a series of incidents, each one even more interesting than the preceding. He closed up his plea with a story from Kipling's "Jungle Book," where the author meets a grave Hindu philosopher who discusses with him the possibility of a terrible war which would wipe out the entire human race. "If mankind had disappeared who would be the lord of creation?" "I would propose the elephant." "No, not the elephant," said Kipling. "Why not?" "Because he is too honest!" The Judges in the Paris court were almost moved to tears by the lawyer's recital of the elephant's virtues, and without withdrawing for deliberation awarded the owner of Mary the damages he sought.

Washington Day by Day

By Robert Barry

Staff Correspondent Evening World

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

WASHINGTON, March 18.

It is with a heavy heart that we pass along some grief to all of you who have been telling about how much you lost when you "got caught in the break in the market."

If you have charged off a few thousands on your income tax return when you did not actually lose the cash you are very much out of luck.

President Hoover and Secretary Mellon have been thinking just as fast as you. They have an official responsibility to check up on such things. They have a political fear of a Treasury deficit. They are going to collect every income tax dollar they believe the Federal Government ought to have.

With those who suffered losses in 1929, the Treasury will be tolerant and fair. With those who did not, yet are saying they did, the Federal Government is going to be awfully tough.

The President's political structure would collapse if it should be announced that prosperity had gone to pot and millionaires become mere salaried minions. Treasury Department auditors are going to make every man prove that times were as bad for him in 1929 as his income tax return alleges.

The Treasury had a cash balance of only $300,000 a few days ago. Ordinarily there is something like $50,000,000 on hand.

Mr. Mellon is defending a cash payment of $33,000,000 to the Steel Corporation, and that is something which must be done soon, unless the Steel Trust will be patient and discount the interest which piles up daily on such a sum.

All of the Administration propaganda is to the effect that more persons filed income tax returns for the calendar year of 1929 than ever before. That may be true. The fact is that the President and Secretary Mellon are fearful that more taxpayers than ever before are going to try to give the run around to the Government on an allegation of having been "caught in the market."

Therein is the bad news it is an unpleasant duty to convey.

Unless you actually lost the cash in Wall Street you are not to be permitted to charge off deductions on your income tax return. The books of brokers will be used against you if you did not actually lose the money. Unless your transactions in the market are listed in brokers' accounts as corresponding with your representations in your income tax return, you are very much out of luck.

Mr. Hoover and Mr. Mellon will be after you before the end of this year.

The situation is one which implies no end of grief for men prominent in Washington.

Since the famous "leak investigation" of 1916 on the Bernstorff note, public men have been very careful about their brokerage accounts.

It used to be that "Billy" Hibbs would have numbers instead of names on a lot of accounts. Recently the racket has been to use "dummies" by name.

Those officials who took substantial profits early in 1929 and suffered severe losses later, are not willing to disclose their identities in many instances, yet wish to charge off their losses. It has seemed they had no real chance of doing so.

Washington has an idea that hundreds of millions of imaginary losses have been charged off in income tax returns. The Treasury Department proposes to get at the facts.

Some weeks must elapse before the Treasury auditors can begin delving into the facts.

TELLING THE WORLD

INSIDE STORY OF THE NEW PLANET

HOW that planet was discovered:

The Harvard Observatory noticed signs twenty years ago that an undiscovered planet might be doing business somewhere. A thousand forces whirled into action at once.

Five prairie schooners were chartered to make the voyage to Flagstaff, Ariz. Commander Fowl (later raised to the rank of Admiral) was put in command of the front prairie schooner and supplies taken aboard. These plies included three barrels of fountain pens, five cases of phonograph records, pemmican, chewing gum and canned caviar.

The voyage to Flagstaff to discover the new planet was bound to be an arduous one. Because of the terrific climate the explorers carried huge wardrobes of pith helmets and silk pajamas and had electric fans concealed in their underwear. The expedition started for Arizona on Oct. 3, 1911. The first stop of the prairie schooners was Erie, Pa., where they listened to a specially arranged radio program of good cheer.

Special radio broadcasts were sent to other points on the voyage till Flagstaff was finally reached. Even then Commander Fowl did not dare to turn off his dials for fear other special programs might be coming in.

Once arrived in Flagstaff early in 1912 the party set about to discover the new planet. It was long, tedious work. Mars, Venus, Saturn, Uranus and Jupiter kept getting in the way. The reporter of the Astronomical Review, Elmer Blount, who had been assigned to stick with the expedition till the discovery was made, grew whiskers longer than Rip Van Winkle's, but kept putting barber's bills on his expense account.

Late in 1914 it looked as if the expedition had been beaten to it. Dr. Cook showed up in New York with notes and a stereopticon lecture to prove he had discovered the new planet. They were just about to book the doctor for a lecture tour when it was proved he had only seen Halley's Comet. So the expedition at Flagstaff buckled up its belt and went to work with redoubled vigor.

The expenses of keeping the Harvard Observatory equipment adjusted were very heavy and it seemed as if the expedition might have to halt from lack of funds. But Harvard solved the problem by firing thirty-six scrubwomen at Cambridge and putting on a male crew at Flagstaff to keep the telescope lenses polished off.

Henry Ford heard about the expedition around this time and offered to buy a patch of goldenrod for it if Edison were put in charge of the telescope. This offer was turned down.

In the mean time the explorers were suffering from intense heat at Flagstaff, but bravely pursued their task of listening to special radio programs and looking through the telescope from time to time. Their endeavor was rewarded two weeks ago when they actually discovered the lost planet.

Harvard promptly announced the new planet was the largest in the solar system. The Madison Square Garden Corporation took exception to this, claiming priority for Primo Carnera. The New York Boxing Commission upheld this claim and consequently the new planet will not be recognized in New York State, New Jersey, Massachusetts or Rhode Island.

England now claims the oil rights to the new planet on the grounds that a Fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society saw it first with a pair of field glasses. This matter is being threshed out now.

Harvard is generally given credit for discovering the planet, but experts point out that Harvard will still have to stop Albie Booth next fall.

So far the chief significance of the planet is that it is proved possible to discover something these days outside the auspices of the New York Times.

AIR FORCES AT SACRAMENTO FOR "WAR"

San Francisco bay and the five 'Red' army corps have forced their way up through California and are being held in check by 'Blue' ground forces over a front which, roughly, runs from Livermore, Alameda county, to Burson, Calaveras county.

"The 'Red' forces have Army observation air forces at Manteca; pursuit groups at Riponand light and heavy bombardment planes at Modesto. The 'Blue' ground forces are supposed to consist of three Army Corps, while the air strength of the 'Blue' provisional wing is made up of 60 pursuit planes, 22 bombardment planes, 28 attack planes and 7 observation ships."

Local View

San Francisco, Los Angeles, and their vicinities will have an unusual opportunity to observe certain features of th eexercises, Major General Fechet said, when special demonstrations will be staged over these two cities. San Francisco will be visited on Apr. 19, and Los Angeles on April 26.

The ships will arrive in each of the two cities about 11:00 o'clock in the morning, pass in review, stage miniature air battles and lay down smoke screens. At night, bombing formations will pass over the two cities and drop parachute flares to stimulate bombs.

"The San Francisco exercises will be of an unusually spectacular nature, and will be staged within sight of land," the Major General explained. "Pursuit will stimulate attack against enemy fleet aviation; attack planes will operate against assumed aircraft carriers, anti aircraft batteries, range finding devices, and secondary batteries; while bombardment will concentrate on capital ships."

More than 400 officers were at Mather field tonight and several hundred enlisted men. A long row of buildings have been erected as barracks for the men and the field resembles war-time activities in 1918 when men were trained there for service in the World War.

Christian Science Lesson Subject

"Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon today in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston, Mass.

The citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon include the following from the Bible: "Thus saith the Lord the King of Israel, and his redeemer the Lord of hosts; I am the last; and beside me there is no God. Fear ye not, neither be afraid: have not I told thee from that time, and have declared it? ye are even my witnesses. Is there a God beside me? yea, there is no God; I know not any"—Isa. 44:6-8.

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-all. From this it follows that nothing possesses reality nor existence except the divine Mind and His ideas. The Scriptures also declare that God is Spirit. Therefore in Spirit all is harmony, and there can be no discord; all is Life, and there is no death. Everything in God's universe expresses Him."—p. 331.

PAINFUL CORNS

Loosen—Lift Out

A little known Japanese herb, the discovery of an eminent German scientist (Dr. Stickel) instantly soothes the corn, callous or wart, then loosens it so that shortly you can lift it right out. This new discovery called "Corn Fly" excites the white blood corpuscles to action and granulates the corn at its root so that it drops out and leaves no trace of scar or soreness.

You will also find "Corn Fly Foot Bath Powder" a boon for sore, tired or perspiring feet.

Different in many respects from the cut-and-dried picture romance, "The Grand Parade" a Pathe dialogue production featuring Helen Twelvetrees and Fred Scott, is a story of blacktace minstrelsy so popular forty or more years ago. This picture will be shown at the Fox-California theater today and tomorrow. It is distinctly a new type of entertainment on the screen for in addition to its vital forceful drama, it presents a complete show such as our grandparents delighted to seen when they were young. Wonderful music, catchy songs, spicy jokes and the glittering pageantry of negro entertainment supplement the drama of this remarkable achievement in the field of audible films.

The two featured players, Helen Twelvetrees and Fred Scott, are players of signal ability. Miss Twelvetrees is a Broadway stage favorite, while Mr. Scott is famous as a concert singer. He is good-looking and his fine tenor voice registers beautifully. The supporting cast includes Richard Carle, famous musical comedy star, Marie Astaire, Russell Powell, Bud Jamieson Jimmy Adams, Lillian Leighton, Spec O'Donnell, Sam Blum, Tom Ma'one and Jimmy Aubrey. Every player in the cast is ideally cast, the result being exceptionally fine character portrayals.

Edmund Goulding, famous novelist and playwright, wrote the story and was the producer of "The Grand Parade." He also wrote and directed Gloria Swanson's successful dialogue picture "The Trespasser." The director was Fred Newmeyer, the stage director was Frank Reicher and the cameraman was Dave Abel.

The story deals with a minstrel singer who wins success, but thru the influence of an evil woman, sinks to the dregs, a drunken cad. He is salvaged by a boarding house slave and she succeeds in making a man of him. There is tremendous drama in the development of the theme and the climax is one of unsurpassed interest.

Up to date picture showmen will find "The Grand Parade" a box-office attraction of supreme merit. It has all the elements of great screen entertainment. It is in addition, a distinct novelty and it will delight picture fans of every degree.

A Fox talking news and an Our Gang comedy is also on the program.

Nation Studies Accident Causes

With automobile fatalities increasing fivefold since 1913 the National Safety Council has undertaken to ascertain the leading causes of these deaths, reports the California State Automobile association. From the records of 1928 of fatal accidents in various parts of the country, the conclusion is reached that the five leading automobile death causes and their relation to each other numerically are as follows:

Pedestrian collisions, 16,180 deaths; automotive vehicle collisions, 4,360; auto-train collisions, 2,170; fixed object collisions, 1,490; auto-street car collisions, 640.

Grounding Wires On Automobile

When grounding an electric wire on your car always clean surface thoroughly, removing all paint, rust, etc. advises the California State Automobile association. Otherwise you cannot expect to get a perfect ground.

Auto Activities Establish New Record In 1929

New records were established last year in practically all lines related to automotive and motoring activities, according to preliminary figures for 1929 reported to the California State Automobile association. Marking one of the greatest years in the manufacturing of motor vehicles, the total production of cars and trucks was 5,651,000 with a wholesale value of $3,483,900,000. Of this total 805,000 were trucks.

In the country over there was a gain in registration over 1928 of eight per cent. California will show a larger increase than this. The United States with a registration of 26,400,000 has 76 per cent of all the automobiles in the world and these travel over 630,000 miles of surfaced highways.

Directly or indirectly the automobile industry gives employment to 4,300,000 persons. It uses 85 per cent of the rubber and 80 per cent of the gasoline consumed in the United States.

It is interesting to note, says the Automobile association that 87 per cent of the cars manufactured were of the closed variety. The average retail prices of cars was $812 and the average for trucks was $877.

Railroad shipments of automotive freight also were much higher in 1929 than in 1928, aggregating 3,600,000 carloads. Gasoline consumption increased to 297,000,000 barrels.

Coordinately, increases were recorded in vehicle and gasoline taxes, the former yielding about $925,000,000 and the latter $415,000,000 a large portion of which was devoted to construction or maintenance of highways. Road expenditures in 1929 exceeded $2,000,000,000, with the United states recording 3,016,218miles of roads of which 660,000 are surfaced.

The retail selling and servicing division of the industry reports a total of 56,300 car and truck dealers in this country, with 51,200 public garages 95,800 service stations and repair shops and 76,600 stores dealing in vehicle supplies. To these should be added, according to the Automobile association, 320,000 gasoline filling stations.

Speed Patrol In Central America Not Necessary

Modern transportation in El Salvador, Central America, has not reached the stage where speed cops and stop lights are a necessity, remarks the National Automobile club. However, the antiquated ox carts are well supplied with horns. Two to an ox, as provided by nature, and fortunately they are silent. The creaking of the ponderous carts is sufficient to give ample warning of approaching danger, especially when one considers that the maximum speed attained is rarely more than three miles an hour.

Just recently the authorities in that country came to the conclusion that each and every one of the 22,000 ox-cart chauffeurs must procure a license before they may operate their vehicles on the mud-paved roads of Salvador. These tags are much smaller than those seen in the States, but why bother about large numerals when one who has become involved in an accident may easily run home, get his pencil and paper, and then return in ample time to procure the license number before the vehicle has proceeded out of sight.

Clean Carburetor Every 10,000 Miles

It is advisable to have the carburetor on your car overhauled every 10,000 miles, suggests the California State Automobile association. All screens and working parts should be examined and all sediment and scale removed. This work should be done by someone who specializes on your particular carburetor.

STAGE CAREER BIG AID IN PICTURES

Some people are born into careers, others are thrust into them, while a few set forth to acquire one.

Lenore Ulric, beautiful stage and screen actress whose second Fox Movietone, "South Sea Rose," is carded as the attraction at the Fox-California theater, belongs to the first and third category starting Tuesday.

It was not the particular reason for her presence in theatrica's that worried the piquant ingenue so much as it was into which branch she should cast her talents. Starting with drama, Miss Ulric took a flyer into musical comedies as a dancer and singer.

Although Miss Ulric made a decision in favor of drama she retained her interest in both singing and dancing, frequently being called upon for these talents in her roles. Now, in "South Sea Rose," she is required to exhibit her combined gifts as Rosalie the fiery half-caste girl.

Charles Bickford, a favorite Broadway stage actor, is cast in the leading male part, and supporting players include Kenneth MacKenna, Tom Patricola, Elizabeth Patterson, Farrell Macdonald, G. Mac Farlane, Ilka Chase, Charlotte Walker, Ben Hall, Daphne Pollard and Roscoe Ates.

"South Sea Rose" is a comedy drama adapted from Tom Cushing's "La Gringa." The theme is developed when a Yankee skipper returns to his small New England town with a South Sea bride whose passionate outbursts and lack of convention stir up the community. An unusual love interest develops the story to a gripping climax.

Also on the program is a talking comedy.

Prison Riot In Missouri Nears Crisis

in the strikes and riots.

Machine Guns

National Guardsmen manning machine guns were stationed in strategic points on guard towers tonight, augmenting the regular officers. The troops have been stationed at the prison since Thursday.

The rioters were fed tonight in the mess hall which they previously wrecked in the fight with the officers Thursday. The prisoners were taken in groups of 150 men.

"Striped" uniforms dotted the long file of men. Bandages on cracked heads were plentiful. "Stripes" are placed on men only for violation of rules and have not been plentiful in the past.

All Quiet

Approximately 600 of the prisoners who did not participate in the mutinies and rioting were allowed their playground privileges this afternoon. There was no disturbance.

The remainder of the more than 40,000 prisoners were kept in locked cells.

The visitin groom of the prison, usually crowded with relatives, wives and sweethearts, was bare today. Visiting privileges have been cancelled.

A belief that the prisoners might have weapons secreted to be used in another riot was given more credence today, when a national guardsman discovered a trusty attempting to smuggle out cartridges belonging to the national guard.

The trusty was turned over to officers. An immediate search of cells was ordered but no weapons were found. The trusty is being questioned.

Oregon Bans Solid Tires On Trucks

California operators of trucks and other commercial vehicles whose business takes their equipment into Oregon were warned by the California State Automobile association that a law in Oregon prohibits the operation in that state of any motor vehicle equipped with other than pneumatic tires after July 1. 1930. Berkeley School Defeats Poet Baseball Team

The Longfellow junior high school varsity nine was narrowly defeated 8 to 6 by the Garfield junior high school squad of Berkeley Friday.

The local boys displayed a fast brand of baseball, but the Garfield outfit succeeded in bunching their hits in a more convenient fashion.

Klobas started on the mound for the Poets. Topas entered the box for Richmond toward the end of the hard fought contest.

Pickering did the receiving for the local aggregation.

Lubrication Needs Ample Oil Supply

Motorists who have fitted their cars with top cylinder lubricators, of which there has been a veritable deluge in the last year, should remember that these devices are useless after the supply of oil in the reservoir has been exhausted, warns L. G. Evans, general service manager for the National Automobile club. Usually the directions indicate in mileage how long the supply should last. It should be checked against the odometer.

Better Babies!

Have you ever considered the satisfaction that a company such as the American Creamery Company has in being a vital factor in health-building of the new generation? Mrs. C. E. Sagner, 219 South 13th Street has kindly consented to let us publish the following unsolicited testimonial letter.

Richmond, Calif.

GENTLEMEN:

It is with pleasure that I enclose herewith a photograph of our baby who was awarded a Blue Ribbon at the recent Pacific Slope Dairy Show recently held in Oakland.

We feel that no small measure of his splendid health and robustness is due to the quality of your milk. When he was a small baby we had a great deal of difficulty in finding the proper milk until we changed to your Grade A. Pasteurized. We had tried many brands and kinds of food with no success.

We recommend the American Creamery to all who desire the best in dairy products together with prompt service.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. C. E. SAGNER.

Richmond's Industrial Fame Now Goes Abroad!

The Chamber of Commerce takes pardonable pride in the part which it has played in organizing the Richmond Student Travel Bureau, which is destined to spread the fame of this city far and wide as a shipping and industrial community.

High School students are to receive instruction in foreign trade, backed up by periodical expeditions to the harbor where the movement of cargo will be seen and explained by practical shipping men.

Those successful in passing the required tests will be given free vacation trips to foreign ports, carrying facts and figures showing the growing importance of Richmond as a center of industry and a port from which an increasing amount of tonnage flows to all corners of the world.

Richmond's industrial fame is thus linked with a worth while adventure in education, and a new idea is launched which will no doubt be emulated in future by other cities of America and the world.

The Chamber of Commerce is pleased to be identified with so constructive a measure.

LOCAL HIGH NINE TAKES BEATING

The Richmond union high school B's had their "offest" of off days Friday when they received a terrific 20 to 1 beating at the hands of the Crockett high school diamond outfit on the Crockett field. The purpose of the battle was to break a 3 to 3 tie played a few weeks ago between Crockett and the local B team.

Nothing, not even three pitchers, could hinder the desire of the Crockett sluggers to slam the ball into every section of the lot Friday. "Bezo" Marcus started on the mound for the Richmond boys, but was nicked for five runs during the first inning. He was replaced by Joe Corazzo, who was also quickly dismissed from the box. George Weeks, usually known as a third baseman, then took the position of chucker for the Richmond boys. Even Weeks could not stop the slugging fest then in progress; so Marcus again took the mound.

The slaughter continued until the end of the sixth canto, when Crockett decided they had done a good day's work and the local boys said that they wanted to go home and think it all over. The local athletes certainly had some thinking to do after Friday's game and they are probably sill wondering what caused the entirely unexpected burst of talent on the part of the Crockett boys.

NEW HOPES OF YANKEES! By Burris Jenkins Jr.

U. S. C. TEAM DEFEAT BEARS

BERKELEY March 29.—(U.P.)—The fast-flying University of Southern California track and field team left Bear harriers far in the lurch at Berkeley oval today, winning their dual meet by the record score of 105 to 26.

The Trojans, proving far superior to the Bears in virtually every department, placed first in every event but one, and all but clean-swept the dashes behind the flying heels of Frank Wykoff.

The score sets a new record in intercollegiate competition.

Although the weather was ideal and the track fast, the Trojans were not sufficiently crowded to turn in any exceptional marks.

Wyhoff and Bob Hall, former intercollegiate weights champion from Texas, shared top honors, each placing first in two events.

Local Soccer Club In Title Game Today

The winner of this season's Junior Eastbay Soccer league cup will be decided today at the Oakland Trotting park at one o'clock when the Richmond soccer athletes clash with the Phoenix club of Oakland in the league finals.

Richmond will be suffering a disadvantage today due to the absence of Nick Bracco, stellar fullback, who is prevented from playing because of an injured foot. The other local athletes will have to play all the harder to make up for this serious deficiency in today's critical contest.

The Richmond Soccer club will be facing a strong rival for the cup this afternoon. The Phoenix players were in first place when the regular league schedule came to an end. Richmond will have a difficult task in defending its net against the ravages of the strong attack of the Oaklanders.

Plans are being made by the Richmond Soccer club for post-season contests with the soccer teams of Martinez and Petaluma.

McRacken Nine To Play Today

The McRacken nine will clash with the Point Richmond diamond squad this morning on the Santa Fe lot at nine o'clock.

Thorne will do the mound work for the McRacken outfit while Tinker will be ready to take the box if Thorne weakens. Assez will receive for McRacken's. Giovanetti will chuck for the Point Richmond team, with Graham as substitute pitcher. Miller will catch for Point Richmond.

Women's Golf Schedule At Berkeley Club

The women's golf schedule at the Berkeley Country club was announced yesterday by Mrs. F. B. LaMoine, captain of the Berkeley Country club women's golf team.

The schedule is as follows—Apr. 3, Mrs. A. M. McIntosh and Mrs. E. E. Jamison in charge; April 10, team matches; Apr. 17, invitational day; Apr. 24, W. H. Adams and Mrs. W. B. Gerould.

A beginner's class in golf will start soon at the Berkeley club under the direction of Mrs. G. L. Parmenter of Berkeley.

Carquinez Golf Tourney April 12

Carquinez golf club members have already started a strenuous training schedule in preparation for the tournament, and it is believed that competition will be especially close this year.

COREY NINE TO MEET MARKET TEAM TODAY

The Corey Garage nine is scheduled to go into action with the Leader Market boys from Oakland this afternoon at two o'clock on the El Cerrito diamond.

The Coreys are probably in for one of their hardest battles of the season today. The Leader Market aggregation was winner of last season's Oakland Spaulding B league, and is well known throughout the eastbay as a formidable opponent on the diamond.

Yet the Corey Garagemen believe they are capable of repeating a former victory over the Oaklanders in today's battle. Coach Matthews has secured in Brendel and San Miguel a replica of his sensational Babich, Rosano duet that was the terror of all teams visiting El Cerrito. Babich and Rosano are now members of the Richmond union high school baseball squad. For several weeks after their departure from the Corey squad, the Garagemen could see nothing but an unsuccessful season ahead of them. Then Brendel and San Miguel came to the rescue, and the Corey Garage nine once more started on its victorious conquest of eastbay teams. The Oaklanders will probably have plenty of trouble today in dealing with the fast ones of Brendel.

Bear Baseball Team Defeats Santa Clara

BERKELEY, March 29.—UP — The University of California baseball team defeated Santa Clara in the twelfth inning rally today 6 to 5.

Tied at 4-4 going into the ninth both teams scored once in that inning.

In the twelfth, Burgett singled off Fatjo's foot, was sacrificed, took third on a fielder's choice and scored on Swenson's single.

High Athletes Participate In Contest At U. C.

Charley Jackson, Richmond union high school pole vaulter, captured fourth place in a track meet yesterday between the Alameda County Athletic league All-Stars and the University of California freshmen on the U. C. oval at Berkeley. As Jackson made his leap to take fourth place, the pole broke under his weight.

Howard Dalton, local high school 440 yard dash athlete, although not among the first four to finish in this event, was nearer the tape than any other A. C. A. L. runner.

"Skip" Albert, local miler, failed to place in the mile grind. Roy Carson, sensational Richmond high school discus thrower, was also unable to carry off any honors in his event.

The California freshmen won yesterday's meet by a large margin. The majority of the high school boys, although the pick of the high school teams of the eastbay, were unable to cope with the more experience dcollege athletes.

Track men from every school in the Alameda County Athletic league composed the A. C. A. L. team in yesterday's meet.

Following the meet, the University of California freshmen were hosts at a dinner in honor of the high school boys who participated in the track meet.

Alpha Chi Cagers Defeat Oakland Fraternity 36-22

The Richmond basketball team of the Alpha Chi fraternity handed a 36 22 defeat to the Phi Epsilens of Oakland recently in the Richmond union high school gymnasium.

The scoring was exceptionally even during the first half of the contest, with the result that the score board read 9 to 6 in favor of the Oakland athletes at half time. However, the Richmond squad rallied in the last two quarters, and bombarded the Oakland basket continually until the final whistle.

Johnson was high point man for Richmond with 16 points, while Erickson reaped high point honors for the visitors with a total of 15.

The members of the Alpha Chi fraternity team were: O'Brien 8; Valiani 8, forwards; Johnson 16, center; Mino, Norman 2, guards; substitutes Hecker 2, Neckel, Armstrong, guards.

The members of the visiting team were: Eggert 1, Erickson 15, forwards; Curtis 2, center; O'Mara, Kemel, guards; substitutes Eurris, Hewett, guards.

SAN PABLANS BEAT LOCAL NINE

The San Pablo Merchants maintained their superiority over the McRacken nine yesterday morning when the San Pablans defeated the McRacken boys 6 to 3 on the First street diamond.

DeCorten did the chucking for the San Pablans yesterday, fanning eight men, allowing seven hits and walking two McRacken boys. Giella occupied the mound for the McRacken squad, allowing 11 hits, striking out seven San Pablo sluggers and walking three.

McRacken's showed a far higher playing standard yesterday than was shown by them in last week's contest with San Pablo which they lost by a scre of 9 to 2. The McRacken outfit yesterday held the San Pablans scoreless until the fifth inning, when San Pablo reaped two counters. Two runs in the seventh, and two in the eighth concluded the scoring for the San Pablo team. The McRacken athletes gained their runs in the first, fourth, and eighth innings.

The San Pablo Merchants are scheduled to clash with the Roosevelt Junior high varsity nine nine Tuesday at First street.

SYNOPSIS

Wade Cooper, arriving at a white settlement in New Guinea, goes on a prolonged spree during which he is robbed of his savings. Stella Blackney, who runs the only hotel in the place, with her dipsomaniac mother, tells him that O'Shane, keeper of the store where Wade obtained his liquor, robbed him, but when he accuses O'Shane of the theft in the girl's presence, she assures O'Shane that it is all a mistake—that Wade was only bluffing. But later when she is alone with Wade, she tells him that her mother has forced her into marrying O'Shane and she fears that he will soon claim his rights as a husband.

"But it is real love. There is no doubt about it. Love is not the perquisite of the virtuous. A bad man can love as deeply and profoundly as a good man. O'Shane loves me as devotedly as any man loved woman, no matter how upright and honourable."

She leaned forward. "Listen. When he came to Samora first he had given up his old way of life, which was a pretty bad one, I can tell you. He had reformed himself and was content to live more or less quietly and honestly, and make just enough money to provide against the continguencies of the future."

"I know," said Wade. "The schooner-captain told me."

"Well, love for me has altered all that. It is love that has sent

"And your mother agreed that you should marry him?"

him back to his old ways. Love always works for good, they say. It does nothing of the kind." There was a harshness in her voice, as though she blamed the love as much as she blamed O'Shane; and the sentiment of it shocked him, for he was something of an idealist.

"O'Shane became dissatisfied with the honest life. There was not enough money in it. He wanted to give me all possible comfort and luxury. No two rooms and a kitchen for the girl he loved! At the monthly pearl-sale last week, when the pearlers came in to sell their finds and refit for another trip to the shell-beds a large and valuable pearl went missing. O'Shane stole it. The others suspected him; but I know. And he robbed you. It is all part of his scheme to give me what he calls a 'good time.' That will show what love can do."

Wade made no answer. It seemed to him there was none to make. Never before had he thought of love in a light like this. It all sounded extremely distasteful. His sympathy for the girl was not in the least diminished, however.

"And your mother agreed to his proposal that you should marry him?" he said presently.

"She thought it a fine chance to get a new start and to have a son-in-law upon whom she could rely in future emergencies," Stella replied. "She pleaded with me, and threatened. But for a long time I could not do it. It was too terrible altogether . . . But why drag it out? I gave in at last, for I was being worn out by the continual bickering. Had there been a way of escaping from Samora I would have gone, even had it meant dressing as a boy and stowing away. But the steamer comes only once in four months. . . . I gave in.

"But if you are married, how is it no one in the settlement seems to know anything about it?"

"I made a stipulation, a proviso, that my—my husband should not claim me while my mother lived and that meanwhile the whole thing should be kept quiet. I don't know why I insisted on this, for I knew that my mother could not behave as she was doing and live long. In my desperation I wanted breathing-time perhaps—time to accustom myself to an order of things revolting in the extreme. Perhaps I hoped some means of escape would show. . . . I don't know. . . . We were married at the mission. The parson and witnesses were made to promise silence."

"But how do you know he will wait?" Wade asked. "Forgive me for questioning you like this; but the whole thing seems so dreadful as to be almost unreal. What is to prevent him claiming you now?"

"He will wait. He knows he has me safe. Besides, I swore I would kill myself if he didn't wait. He knows I meant it, and he doesn't dare the risk. He loves me too much. He won't have to wait long. My mother is ill again—and this time it is serious. She is dying—dying—you know what it means to me if—"

She sought to correct her stumbling speech, and failed.

"He comes every day—the beast—to see—to see—how she is—"

She stopped, and her grip of his shoulders tightened.

"I won't go to him! I won't! Marriage or no marriage! I can't do it! I'll kill myself first!"

Her face was aflame, and her eyes were globes of black fire.

"But I don't want to die! I want to live! I want life, which can be beautiful—not death, which is hideous!"

She pointed to the cutters.

"My mother bought one of those boats some time ago. She had some idea of sending it trading; but all it did was to add to our debts."

Her breast was heaving convulsively, the movement plain beneath the thinness of her garment.

"David Wade, you dear, clean-living boy, take me away before he comes to claim me! Take me with you to the Solomons, or wherever it is you are going! I don't care where it is, so long as I get away from here, from O'Shane. David, David, I have been building on you helping me. It was for this that I tried to prevent you drinking. It nearly broke my heart when I found you had been robbed. I was near to the bottom of bottomless despair. You were—are—my only hope. But, David, we will get the money back. I know we will."

Her arms left his shoulders, and, warm and living, crept about his neck.

"Take me with you! You can help me over the chain! I must get away! Take me! There is a boat. Let us provision it and sail away—just you and I—"

His quick ear catching sound of approaching footsteps, Wade had placed a hand silencingly across her lips.

CHAPTER III.

"It's Lo-oru," said Stella, as a native girl came up and stood shyly before them—a girl pleasing of expression and shape of face, clad only in the short, fibre skirt of her kind, and holding her supple body straightly, as though afraid her half-nudity would emphasize a stoop. "I asked her to come here and repeat to you a story she told me an hour or two ago."

She nodded to the girl to begin. Lo-oru said she knew who had robbed the white man. She had seen him and his companions lying asleep on the beach that night she said, and for a time watched them, wondering at their foolishness; then, as she turned to go, she saw a man approach and bend over Wade. At which she had stepped into the deep shadow of a palm and watched, but in the darkness could not see clearly what it was he did. Presently, however, leaving them, the man stepped into a stream of lamplight from the store, and she saw that it was O'Shane, and that he was carrying something—a wallet. She saw him enter the store, then she hurried away.

"You see?" said Stella, when she stopped. "There's no doubt about it, is there?"

Lo-oru's statement was certainly decisive, clear, and unfaltering, and to Wade quite conclusive of the storekeeper's guilt but for one thing—it was distinctly unusual for natives to wander after dark, believing as they did in nocturnal and actively malevolent spirits.

The white girl looked at the brown.

"Go on; tell it all."

But a sudden confusion came to Lo-oru. She averted her eyes; her head drooped a little; her fingers idled with the fibres of her skirt. Stella urged her again, and on receiving no reply explained that she was ashamed. Then she herself gave the reason for Lo-oru's late wandering.

"O'Shane had her locked in a back-room, and she had escaped."

"Locked in a room!" Wade cried. "Why, what for?"

"Don't you understand? He is like that. I told you before. It's one of the reasons I can never be his wife."

He had been pursuing Lo-oru for a long time, she went on; but Lo-oru would have nothing of him, she being a "good girl" employed at the mission, and besides, being engaged to marry one of the crew of Mrs. Blackney's cutter.

SLAYER OF GIRL PLEADS SELF DEFENSE

cent City and Eureka, she again drew the gun. He attempted to get it away from her and he says two shots were fired.

Was Scared

The girl slumped in her seat. "I was scared," King told police. "She was bleeding awful. I sat there awhile and didn't know what to do. Then I saw that she was dead. I dragged her about 15 or 20 feet off the road and headed the car back north."

He said he threw the gun away before he crossed the Oregon line. He drove to Corvallis where he was known and there met Miss Pardee again.

Tells Kin

They were married in Vancouver, Wash., March 1.

John D. Cooper, uncle of Miss Pardee, was with King when he was arrested. He did not know what the man was taken in custody for.

After he had confessed to police, King was taken before Cooper.

He told Cooper that he was mixed up in a shooting scrape in California and would have to go there for trial.

"Am Innocent"

"Tell Eunice to keep a stiff upper lip," King said to Cooper, "and this will come out all right. I am going back to Eureka and fight it out. I am innocent of any wrong and if there ever was a case of self defense, this is one."

He was trying to break with Miss McCoy, King told police, but she would not let him leave. The climax was reached when the souple reached here en route from Pocatello, to California, when he told the girl he was "through."

She drew a revolver, King said, and held it against his ribs.

Threatened Him

"You drive to California right now, or I'll kill you," he said she told him.

Followed a mad dash with the girl holding the gun against him even when they stopped at gas stations. When he reached the spot along the Redwood highway in Humboldt county, King said, he was exhausted from the 300 mile drive, and became desperate.

With a quick movement he seized the gun, according to his confession and the woman fought to get it back. He shot her in the head and threw the body out of the car, King related. Then he drove back to Portland where he remained since.

Met Girl

About a month ago he met Eunice Pardee of Corvallis, and they were married in Vancouver, Wash.

King, according to records at police headquarters, has been convicted twice on white slavery charges. The first conviction was in St. Joseph Mo., and the second in Phoenix, Ariz.

Captain Thatcher telephoned Sheriff J. W. Runner of Eureka, who said he would start for Portland tonight to return King for trial. King indicated that he would waive extraditio, and plead that the crime was committed in self defense.

SEARCH ENDS AFTER SIX DAYS

EUREKA, March 29.—UP—After six days and nights of unremitting labor, a weary sheriff and his aides prepared tonight to rest.

Every circumstance seeming at last to converge in bearing out the "solution of solutions," the final identification of the girl of the redwood murder and her slayer, Sheriff John Runner was ready to release the dozens of witnesses who have been held while they delved into clues and theories that changed their faces almost hourly during the hunt.

Since the body of the girl was found behind a redwood log last Sunday night, successive "certain identifications" and "significant clues" have started searchers for a dozen missing women from almost as many states and for almost as many men "known" to have threatened their lives.

Many Clues

One after another, the women turned up alive and well and the men either eluded search, established perfect alibis or were proved figments of the inflamed imaginations of witnesses.

The dead girl was by turns a waitress, a deserting mother and a demimonde slain by a gang of drug peddlers.

Her 'slayer" changed, chameleonlike, from a San Diego card sharp to a San Pedro bootlegger; from avenging husbands to sated lovers seeking an exit from a stale affair.

Women Found

Though each new "clue" bristled with incongruities, Sheriffs Runner of Humboldt county and Breen of Del Norte doggedly tracked them down.

As a by-product of the search, two missing women were located, to the relief of anxious families.

A small sized family feud between relatives of Mrs. Gladys Preston of Redding, whose conflicting testimony a special grand jury was called to sift.

Prints Found

Police in more than 20 California cities and as many more in Oregon, Utah and Nevada checked the meagre description of the weather-wasted body against missing persons in their records.

Under miscroscopes, fingerprint experts peered at reproductions of the strips of cuticle sent to every state bureau of criminal identification in the country. After thousands of photographs, each bearing microscopic differences in the whorls, had passed beneath his eyes, Clarence Morrill, hear of the California bureau, found the set that jibed.

And Sheriffs Runner and Breen and half a bundred footsore aides got ready to get some sleep.

MRS. KING HELD BY OREGON POLICE

CORVALLIS, Ore., March 29.—UP—Sheriff Newton, of Benton county, reported today that he had taken Mrs. Eunice King, wife of Clarence L. King, confessed slayer of Mary McCoy, into custody. He was also holding the automobile in which the shooting was believed to have occured, he said.

A gun was found in the automobile.

Mrs. King refused to talk to authorities.
